"The muffled report of a revolver, followed by the shock of a man's fall, greeted the ears of the stragglers in the vicinity of the ears of the stragglers in the vicinity of Thirteenth and Market streets about 1 o'clock yesterday morning. The sounds came track the boarding-bouse No. 52 north Thirteenth street. After locking himself in his room on the third floor Tomaso Potentini placed a 32-calibre pin-fire 'Dutchman' revolver to his temple and blew out his brains. Several occupants of the house were aroused by the explosion, and they made a pertial investigation, but neglected to lock on the third floor. It was about 9 o'clock vesterday morning when the body o'clock yesterday morning when the body fer dable, feering that something was wrong the landlady knocked at his bedroom door. She received no response, and, summoning, several other boarders to her assistance, they broke down the door. Potentini was lying prostrate upon the floor, with the unmistakable pallor of death upon his swarthy features. His head was partially submerged in a pool of blood, and his right hand grasped the weapon with which he had ended his life.

"Dark clots were besmattered over the carpet and walls, and the blood had congealed around a ghastly wound in his right temple. Coroner's Physician Formad was summoned, and after a post-morten examination had been made the body was taken in charge by Undertaker Good. A few years ago deceased realized that he was mentally unable to attend to his business affairs, and he placed them in the hands of Oliver & Sons, of No. 25 south Front street. Their Differences Being Adjusted.
There has existed between the Tredegar from-Works and fifteen employés such differences that the latter have been out for the past two works. General Anderson, president of the company, and the Executive Committee of the Knights of Labor, on the part of the men, have held several conferences, all of which were pleasant, and it is expected that the men will return to work in a few days.

The part of the works where these men have been employed has been thoroughly repaired while operations were suspended.

The cause of the trouble was the change in this mill—a ten-inch merchant's mill—from the plan of paying by the day to paying by the ton of material turned out, and bringing five men here from Lebanon, Pa., so as to enable this mill to run day and night with two shifts, instead of during the day, as heretofore, with one set of hands.
